St. George, Utah (September 12, 2024) – When the inaugural Black Desert Championship presented by Greater Zion tees off this October, Utah's passionate fan base can look forward to seeing several notable local players alongside some of the best golfers in the world. The tournament will feature multiple Utah-based players receiving sponsor exemptions, including Park City resident and 2024 International Presidents Cup captain Mike Weir, former BYU standout Peter Kuest, and rising star Kihei Akina, a senior at Lone Peak High School who is committed to BYU. Additionally, Utah natives and former BYU stars Patrick Fishburn and Zac Blair have also confirmed their participation, while St. George native Jay Don Blake will celebrate his 500th career PGA TOUR start in his hometown during this inaugural event.

“The Black Desert Championship is truly Utah's tournament, and we invite the entire state to come out and support their local heroes,” said Patrick Manning, Managing Partner of Black Desert Resort. “We’re excited to offer exemptions to Mike, Peter, and Kihei and are thrilled to have them join our field in October. It’s also an honor to welcome 2024 Presidents Cup International Captain Mike Weir and to highlight the incredible talent of Kihei Akina, recognized as one of the nation’s top junior golfers. Additionally, we’re pleased that former BYU star Peter Kuest, along with standout alumni Patrick Fishburn and Zac Blair, are committed to competing.”
